

NEWSMAKERS

Compiled by Lindsay King, assistant editor

Within this “Newsmakers” column we share important news and accomplishments of our members, including state association activities, birth and marriage announcements, and news of Angus members’ passing.

In passing

Mary Block, 83, Yorkville, Ill., passed away May 16.

Block was born in New Orleans on Sept. 29, 1935, to the late Lloyd J. and Mireille née Lebreton Cobb.

She was a 1957 graduate of Tulane University and a member Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. As a Cordell Hull Scholar, Block lived in Spain for five years in the early 1960s where she worked in the National Archives of Spain in both Seville and Madrid. Block also led many trade missions to Latin America and Europe for the New Orleans International Trade Mart where her father was president. She later taught Spanish and Algebra at Metairie Park Country Day School. As a young woman, Block was a model and appeared in various publications including the cover of Town and Country magazine.

Upon the death of her husband Dr. George E. Block in 1994, Block became the president of Sunny Valley Farm, LLC. She bred some of the most famous Angus cattle in the breed, including the legendary SVF Bandolier. An equestrian in her youth she enjoyed her horses, dogs, travel, and family.

Survivors include her sons, Edward (Kimberly) Block of Bristol, Va., and George (Marjorie) Block, Jr. of San Antonio, Texas; grandchildren, Natalie Mireille Block of Bristol, Va.,

Meagan (Alejandro) Block Garcia of San Antonio, Texas, Jeremy Randolph (Christalene) Block of San Antonio, Texas, and Dr. Travis Jackson Block of San Antonio, Texas; great grandchildren, Maxwell Alexander Garcia and Liberty Jane Garcia both of San Antonio, Texas.

Mark Wade Slagle, 58, Sargent, Neb., passed away April 19.

Mark was born April 17, 1961, to Melvin and Jeanette (Gibson) Slagle in Ord, Neb. He spent much of his young years farming the front yard and would regularly negotiate trades for needed toy equipment at the Sargent John Deere store. These early business deals would help him as he transitioned into adulthood.

Mark graduated from Sargent Public High School in 1979 and knew early on he wanted to farm and raise registered Angus cattle. He formed a partnership in 1976 with his parents to start Slagle Angus. Although they did show at the Denver Stock Show from 1981 to 1984 and won the grand champion carload three times, Mark’s primary goal was to raise big beef bulls that performed well in the feedlot setting.

In 1996, Mark married Kristin

McDaniel and they had four daughters: Corri, Bridget, Vivian and Melissa.

As Mark battled ocular lymphoma with CNS involvement, he showed his true spirit by coping with this disease while being the best dad possible. While getting treatments, he took his family in a camper to Alaska for 19 days, fulfilling a longtime dream of his.

Mark holds a patent for his post-puller invention. He loved hunting, precision shooting and music.

Survivors include his wife, Kristin; daughters Corri, Bridget, Vivian and Melissa Slagle; parents, Melvin and Jeanette, and sister Cheryl (Bernard) Ritchie.

NCBA CEO Announces Retirement

After 34 years with the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association (NCBA), the past four as CEO, Kendal Frazier announced his plans for retirement. Kendal’s career began as a farm broadcaster in Kansas, where he also served as director of communications for the Kansas Livestock Association (KLA), before moving to Denver, Colo., to join the staff of the National Cattlemen’s Association (NCA), predecessor organization to NCBA.

During his illustrious career, he served the beef industry through some of its most challenging times and events.

“For more than three decades, the beef industry has benefited from Kendal’s vision and leadership. There is no doubt in my mind that he has played a major role in ensuring the success of our industry today,” says NCBA President Jennifer Houston. “It has been my pleasure to work closely with Kendal for many years and I can say without a doubt, we are far better off because of his service to cattlemen and cattlemen.”

As CEO, Frazier kept a sharp focus on the issues that matter most to the members and the industry he represented. During his tenure, his commitment to improving domestic and international demand for beef has been unwavering.

Likewise, he dedicated significant resources to ensuring beef producers continue to enjoy the freedom to operate by ensuring members’ priorities in Washington, D.C., remain a core focus for the association.

“I’m a lucky man to have worked in the cattle industry, what a wonderful journey this has been,” Frazier says.

“It has been an honor to serve the men and women who make their living in the cattle business. I am confident that I’m leaving NCBA in a good place.”

Angus Employee Selected for International Award

Kasey Brown, Saint Joseph, Mo., was chosen to represent the U.S. at the 2019 International Federation of Agricultural Journalists (IFAJ)

Congress by receiving the 2019 IFAJ/Alltech Young Leaders in Agricultural Journalism Award. Brown is one of ten young agriculturalists selected from the IFAJ’s 50 member countries to attend the event.

“The importance of strong journalism in communicating agriculture’s truth in today’s world cannot be overstated,” says Mark Lyons, president and CEO of Alltech. “We are proud to support the next generation of journalists who are passionate about sharing the real stories of the farm and field, and the men and women who work tirelessly to feed our planet.”

The ten honorees will attend the Congress in Minneapolis, Minn., in late July where they will participate in a boot camp and workshops pertaining to professional development and networking.

“The IFAJ/Alltech Young Leaders program has helped strengthen so many individual careers, so many guilds around the world, and IFAJ as a whole,” says Steve Werblow, IFAJ secretary general. “Bringing together these talented, motivated and energetic young professionals is always a highlight of the year, and watching them go back home with new contacts and perspective is extremely exciting.”

the public is from their food source. Experiences in 4-H and FFA gave her a passion for sharing agriculture's story and led her to Oklahoma State University (OSU) where she is a senior in ag communications.

"I am excited to learn the ins and outs of cattle production while sharing the stories of those who feed us," Dinterman says. "I have no doubt after this summer I will be a stronger advocate for production agriculture."

Raised on a registered cattle farm in central Minnesota, active in 4-H and FFA, Kohls brings her knowledge and enthusiasm for beef wherever she goes. Seven-generation roots in farming led her to study ag communications, food safety, meat science and social media at South Dakota State University (SDSU), where she will be a senior this fall.

“I feel called to share food’s story from farm to fork with producers and consumers alike to continue to build relationships and trust in our food system,” she says. “Beef is my passion and I am eager to share stories with cattlemen across the country as we work together to provide a quality product for generations to come.”

Dinterman and Kohls work on a variety of platforms – print, broadcast, online, etc. – to connect producers with the latest ideas on how to raise the best beef profitably. The pair work with the producer communications team to create feature stories, technical news releases and video scripts, along with photography and blogs.
