Louisville: It's a location of nobility in the livestock industry. The place where faces of the industry's elite beam from the walls in all their oil-painted glory. It's a name uttered by many, and only truly understood by the ones that have left their blood, sweat and tears out on that iconic arena floor.

Almost 800 youth led 1,193 entries through Broadbent Arena July 14-20 for the National Junior Angus Show (NJAS). Themed "Win, Place and Showing for the Purple," the intensity and atmosphere of the Kentucky Derby was evident in every element of the largest youth cattle show in the nation. Judges from across the nation handed out the coveted championship slaps to the hardworking National Junior Angus Association (NJAA) members.

Find out who took home the top honors and maybe even stake out your next breeding decision.

B&O FEMALES

Junior Angus exhibitors led 282 heifers in the bred-and-owned (B&O) show at the NJAS July 17. John McCurry, Burrton, Kan. — assisted by Shane Werk, Manhattan, Kan. — evaluated the entries before selecting top five champions.

Belmont, Wis., native Ava Leibfried led the grand champion B&O female. The March 2018 heifer, HBL Indian Maiden 843, was sired by Colburn Primo 5153. Winning the late junior champion title took this female to the top of the final drive.

EOR Proven Queen 8100 HSO claimed the reserve grand champion B&O female title. She was shown by Ethan Rigney, an Elwood, Ind. junior. This April 2018 heifer was first named reserve late junior champion and was sired by SAV Bismarck 5682.

Claiming third overall B&O female was Evan Henning from Janesville, Wis., with Henning Sandy 8072. The June 2018 heifer was sired by Dameron First Impression. She was named intermediate champion prior to the grand drive.

Allstar Lucy 718 was named fourth overall B&O female. She was shown by Camargo, Ill., native Luke Zimmerman. The September 2017 daughter of SCC First-N-Goal GAF 114 won senior champion earlier in the show.

Maggie Davis from Bidwell, Ohio, led the fifth overall B&O female. DCC Shadoe 1720 is an October 2017 daughter of Colburn Primo 5153. She was first named reserve senior champion before heading to the grand drive.
