

Editor's Mailbox

► compiled by Kasey Brown, associate editor

Submitted photos

► Left & Right: My name is Kolti Ishler. I work for Bryan and Marcia Musard here in Dillon, Mont. I bought this steer (aka Boss) from Bryan in January as a 4-H steer and sold him at the Beaverhead County Fair Labor Day weekend. Marcia thought that you would enjoy these photos.

Submitted by Brian Carlson

Mr. Cotton doing his thing!
— Celeste Settrini

Bittersweet moment for me!
— Emma Collins

Question from a reader

I would like to see how many farms/ranchers use grain to round up their cows? We get teased that we have pets not cattle because a lot of our cows are very tame and we use grain to round them up whenever we are moving or working them. We started four years ago and our herd consists of more than 50 head, mostly commercial with a few show animals.

We find that because we work with them and use grain, it makes them quiet and very easy to work with. We have had situations during calving season that it saved calves being able to handle them and get them to the corral if needed. Just looking for some feedback on this topic.

Thank you,
Stacy Hendren Sissler

Editor's Note: You can weigh in on this topic by writing on our Facebook page's wall at www.facebook.com/AngusJournal.