Committed to herdsmanship

Alabama's Jake Smith named Junior Herdsman of the Year during the 2016 National Junior Angus Show.

Angus juniors from across the nation spent countless hours getting cattle ready to show at the National Junior Angus Show (NJAS). A successful herdsman displays dedication, an eye for detail and the ability to encourage fellow breeders in and out of the showing.

▶ The 2016 Junior Herdsman of the Year is Jake Smith.

During the recent NJAS, National Junior Angus Association (NJAA) member Jake Smith of Cullman, Ala., was named the 2016 Junior Herdsman of the Year. An honor voted on by his peers, Smith was selected for his commitment to the Angus breed and the NJAA.

"Showing cattle has always been a family ordeal," Smith says. "We work hard to have our cattle looking their best. We might not do the most winning at the show, but we always try our best."

An NJAA member since he was 9 years old, Smith has attended nearly every NJAS since. This year, he brought two bred-and-owned (B&O) heifers, a B&O cow-calf pair that won reserve in her division, as well as an owned heifer. Smith works alongside his dad in their operation, Black Knight Cattle Co.

The Junior Herdsman of the Year award recognizes NJAA members who display a dedication to their animals, a strong work ethic, the ability to work with other junior members, and the skills necessary to prepare cattle for show.

"The NJAA has provided me with so many relationships throughout the years," Smith says. "Through the NJAA, you learn respect, a good work ethic and responsibility. You learn a lot of life lessons that help you grow."

Every junior exhibiting cattle at the NJAS is eligible to vote for the member they believe deserves Junior Herdsman of the Year. Throughout the week, they watch their peers and determine who best exemplifies the qualities of a herdsman.

Nearly 700 Angus juniors and their families recently attended the 2016 NJAS, hosted July 3-9 in Grand Island, Neb.
