Generous support from several state groups provided complimentary meals to National Junior Angus Show attendees.

Meals during the 2008 National Junior Angus Show (NJAS) were sponsored by different state groups throughout the week. State groups and other supporters took the opportunity to sponsor breakfast, lunch or dinner for show attendees, allowing participants to stay close to the barns and their cattle and making the week a more affordable family activity.

“Each year a number of states, ranches, individuals and companies step up to make the complimentary meals available to the junior members and their families attending the NJAS. It is their support that makes these meals possible,” says James Fisher, American Angus Association director of junior activities.

“Some of these state associations do not have the facilities to host the NJAS within their state while others do, yet they all understand the massive undertaking of hosting the NJAS and want to add their support both financially and physically to the success of this tremendous youth event.

“I personally want to extend my thanks to these people and organizations for their support of this great event,” he adds.

On behalf of the entire Angus family, we would like to say a big “thank you” to meal sponsors:
