EDITORIAL: ADAPTING AS WE MOVE FORWARD

In the coming year, we will continue to see changes. Already in 2021, the Missouri Angus Association Board of Directors has made the following directional updates:

- The 65th Annual Missouri Angus Breeders' Futurity Sale will be held on Sunday, February 27, 2022 online. We will again be utilizing the services of Angus Live to host the sale, but no cattle will be gathered for the sale and we will not have any events at the Trowbridge Livestock Center. All lots are welcome including females, bulls, pairs, pregnancies, embryos, and semen. There is no requirement for cattle to be halter broke, but if they are, those animals will have a special denotation to let potential buyers know. Additional details can be found on page 9 as well as will be released in the coming months.
- The 2022 Missouri Angus Membership Banquet and Annual Meeting will again be held in conjunction with the Futurity weekend, but as a stand-alone event at our headquarters hotel, the Courtyard by Marriott Columbia. Make plans to spend Saturday, February 26th with us for the annual meeting in the afternoon and banquet in the evening.
- The Missouri Angus Association Points System has had some updates as well. In 2021, Cattlemen's Congress has been added as a recognized junior and open show. Additionally, the National Junior Angus Show and four Roll of Victory shows will have an increased point distribution. The final update is for the Missouri Show Breeder and Junior Show Breeder of the Year as now each Missouri bred animal is able to contribute up to 200 points for the Show Breeder of the Year. The complete rules can be found on page 22.
- The role has not changed, but the title of the association employee has. The title of General Manager has been updated to Executive Director.

As we continue to sort through changes as a nation, Missouri Angus Association stands strong and ready to assist our members. Thank you for your membership and as always, please feel free to reach out to myself or any of the Missouri Angus Association Board of Directors with questions.

While working on the Missouri Angus Trails, I am constantly searching for articles. I've learned to skim quicker than ever and try to find if and what the biases may be and ultimately, is it acceptable to use for a print publication. Throughout my searches, I find a variety of interesting topics, some that fit and many that don't. In the past few years, I have tried to have a balance of content including some about human health.

In the search for our 2021-2022 Directory, I read an interesting article about fatigue. Let's be honest, it hit close to home that day. The article is included on page 42 for your reference and opens up with a quote from University of Missouri Extension Human Development Specialist Mary Engram, stating, "Lack of sleep affects us physically and mentally." Being blunt, my first thought was close to, "Yeah, who doesn't know that." I kept reading the article and it mentions the National Sleep Foundation recommends adults get seven to nine hours of sleep nightly. Again, my thought was somewhere along the lines of seven would be amazing, heck, I'd take a solid five.

I came back to the article and read it again a few days later. All joking aside, it mentions farm safety and animal handling. There have been plenty of days we've all been exhausted from just going through the motions of a routine day. I realize nine hours of sleep is a pipe dream, but sometimes taking a step back and thinking about how you are handling things may be needed.

July 2021 will mark the start of my fifth year working for Missouri Angus Association. In the past four years, I've stepped back, moved forward, stepped sideways and much more to better understand this role and how we as an association can best serve our members. Since interviewing for the position in 2017, I've gotten married, moved to Missouri, bought a farm and brought into the world a beautiful baby girl. Through life's experiences I've continued to tweak the ways in which I work with the board of directors as well as communicate with our members.

I am blessed to be able to sit behind a computer and see Angus cattle out my office window. We have an amazing babysitter and grandparents that have helped us learn to balance work and life while wrestling an extremely active kiddo. I'm still learning and appreciate your support as we continue to drive Missouri Angus Association forward.

MISSOURI ANGUS ASSOCIATION

COMMITTEE RESPONSIBILITIES

Executive Committee

The Executive Committee is authorized by Association by-laws to make decisions regarding association business in between board meetings. The Executive Committee should then report any actions taken to the full board.

Responsibilities include:

1. Review alleged Rules/Bylaws violations and breeder complaints, to determine whether to initiate investigations into such violations and whether a complaint is brought before the full board.
2. Working closely with the General Manager for the purpose of pursuing Association programs and issues.
3. Review amendments to and proposed changes to Association rules and its bylaws.

Finance Committee

Areas of responsibility include financial oversight and planning, budget, investment and employee policy. The Finance committee is responsible for assets and operations of the Association with the board of directors' approval. This responsibility includes determining and recommending to the board, policies that will maintain and enhance the financial position of the Association. The nature of this responsibility involves the Finance Committee in activities of other committees established by the board. The responsibility of the Finance Committee is not to determine policy recommendations of other committees; but to inform the full board of the financial ramifications of proposed acts or policies.

Committee matters include:

1. Administration of Association finances.
2. Development and recommendation of budgets for the Association as a whole and for each department therein.
3. Establishment of program fees.
4. Review financial reports of various services and programs offered by the Association. This review relates cost to benefits of Association programs.
5. Establish policy regarding the As-

6. Generally, monitor factors affecting business, business cycles and inflation and make changes in the financial structure of the Association as warranted.
7. Oversee and evaluate needs of the Association's real property and equipment.

Nominating Committee

As directed by the Association bylaws, the Nominating Committee shall present a slate of officer and director candidates to the membership at the Association's annual meeting.

Activities and Events Committee

Areas of responsibility include open shows, junior shows, Junior Angus Academy, selection and hiring of judges, and show policy.

Committee responsibilities include:

1. Make recommendations to the Board of Directors regarding Association shows, junior shows and activities related thereto.
2. Initiate suggestions and guidelines for show classifications (adult and junior) and premium participation; maintain a current contact list of judges, and oversee the hiring of show judges.
3. Coordinate Association sponsored events and junior programs, including but not limited to the:
  - Missouri Angus Breeders' Futurity
  - Missouri Angus Preview and Jackpot Show
  - Missouri State Fair Angus Shows
4. Obtain sponsorships for events, awards and activities.

Industry Relations Committee

The Industry Relations Committee is tasked with providing the board of directors with insight into programs and relationships that will help maintain and expand sustainability of the Association. Committee responsibilities include the cultivation and maintenance of partnerships with allied industry organizations, focusing on major issues facing segments of the beef cattle and Angus industry. Members are encouraged to participate in and develop working knowledge of industry affiliate programs.

In doing this, the committee is asked to:

5. Work with seedstock producers, livestock markets and local associations in developing programs that can benefit cattlemen using superior Angus-based genetics.
6. Create and promote programs that enhance the value of Angus cattle in the industry.
7. Develop and maintain relationships with industry allies and affiliates as deemed appropriate by the board of directors.
8. Oversee educational efforts directed to members, producers and consumers.

Communications Committee

Areas of responsibilities include working closely with the General Manager for the purpose of promoting Angus cattle in Missouri and Association programs.

Responsibilities include:

1. Review, research and advise the board of directors of promotional strategies and campaigns that may allow the Association to better serve and grow its membership, including social media, and other platforms that may become available.
2. Coordinate Association advertising programs and promotions.
3. Assist as needed with educational programs through communication with media, members and affiliates.
4. Provide support for the Missouri Angus Trails and any other publication, digital or conventional, the Association may pursue.

Commercial Marketing

Areas of responsibilities include reviewing avenues and opportunities for marketing of Angus and Angus based cattle.

Responsibilities include:

1. Review existing programs that are available to members.
2. Look for new ways to market cattle.

Galaxy Detail 8546

Use the bull for his added depth, squareness of hip, foot size and substance. He is backed by one of the easiest fleshing and deepest bodied donors we have seen. The EPD profile gives you so many extras that have become so important in today's selection pressure. The early calf reports on this well rounded bull show low birth, rapid growth and a stand out look.

MISSOURI ANGUS ASSOCIATION CONSTITUTION AND BY LAWS

ARTICLE I

This Association shall be known, as the “Missouri Angus Association” The location of the Association shall be at the place designated by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE II

The object of this Association shall be to encourage and extend the influence of Angus cattle, to promote the interest of its membership by creating higher standards of Angus cattle raised and produced and to promote closer relations by the membership and to stimulate greater activity among them.

ARTICLE III

There shall be two classes of membership: Regular and Associate. Regular Members must reside or be currently engaged in the production of Angus in the State of Missouri.

Any person owning Angus cattle may become a member of the Association by sending their name and address together with the annual membership fee to the General Manager of the Association. Regular members shall be entitled to one vote per membership on any matter submitted to a vote of the membership. Voting by mail or proxy will not be permitted. Any other person or entity may join the Association as an Associate member. An Associate member will receive all benefits as Regular members, however would not have voting privileges or be allowed to serve on the Missouri Angus Association Board of Directors.

ARTICLE IV

A board of 15 members elected by ballot at the Annual Meeting or otherwise qualified by these By-laws shall govern the Association. The Board shall meet at least quarterly; manage the property, affairs, and business of the Association. The Board shall have the power to establish rules, regulations and procedures for the conduct of the affairs of the Association consistent with the provisions of these By-Laws. The Board shall also have the power to employ such personnel and to assign to them duties, as they deem necessary for the conduct of the Association affairs.

The Board shall consist of President, President-Elect, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Past-President, plus 9 directors, one from each district. (District boundaries attached as Appendix A.) Also any Missouri Angus Association Member who serves on the National Angus Board, or is an officer of the National Angus Board shall serve as a non-voting member. Only Regular members will be eligible for election to the board. All officers and Board members shall be entitled to a vote at all board meetings. Three Directors shall be elected annually for a term of three years for a maximum of two full terms. In addition directors will be elected to fill unexpired terms on the board as needed.

If any board member or officer who is physically able fails to attend two-thirds of the regularly scheduled board meetings in any year (year defined as March 1 to February 28) or otherwise fails to perform the duties for which they are elected, the board may, after notification of that person, remove them from office and declare a vacancy. If a vacancy develops in the board because of death, resignation or action taken in accordance with the preceding case, it may be filled by interim appointment by the board until the next annual meeting and election.

ARTICLE V

The President shall select an Executive Committee to act upon all emergency matters or upon any other questions referred to them. The Executive Committee shall consist of the President, President-Elect, Vice-President, and two additional Board Members appointed by the President. The nominating committee shall consist of the three most immediate Past Presidents of the Association and two members of the Association selected by the President. The nominating committee shall present a slate of officer and director candidates to the membership at the annual meeting. The president may appoint standing or special committees deemed necessary for the transaction of the business of the Association. All committee appointments, as well as the decisions made by them, are subject to ratification by the Board.

A majority of the Board Members must be present to constitute a quorum. A majority vote of the board or a majority vote of a quorum of the board shall constitute a legal action. Committees are subject to the same rules.

ARTICLE VI

All officers and board members shall be accessible to Association members and should attend and promote as many events sponsored by the Association and Association members as possible. Each officer and director should work toward and promote an annual meeting of their district members.

The President shall preside at all meetings of the Board and Executive Committee. The President shall fill by appointment with the approval of the board all temporary vacancies in the office and all committees not otherwise provided for and perform any other duties pertaining to the office of President.

The President-Elect shall preside in the absence of the President and perform all duties pertaining to the office. The President-Elect will also be in charge of coordinating the Breeder of the Year program including collecting and tabulating the applications.

The Vice-President shall preside in the absence of the President and President-Elect and perform all duties pertaining to the office.

The Secretary shall record all proceedings of the Association, conduct correspondence with the Board and perform such duties as pertain to the office of Secretary.

The Treasurer shall keep an account of all receipts and expenses and be custodian of the cash funds and securities of the Association and shall deposit, invest or otherwise dispose of the same as the Board may order. The Treasurer shall execute to the Association a bond in such sum as the Board of Directors may require.

ARTICLE VII

The annual meeting of the members of this Association shall be held once each calendar year at a place designated by the Board. Notice to the membership by mail prior to the meeting shall constitute sufficient prior notice.

The order of Business at such Annual Meeting shall be:

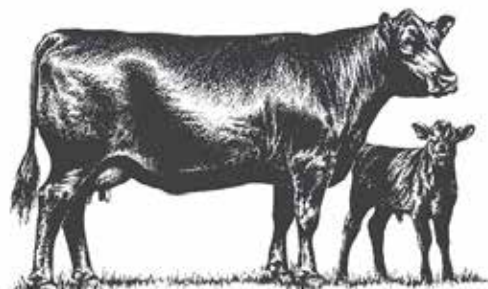

- Call to Order
- President's Address
- Reading and Approval of minutes of last annual meeting
- Reading and Approval of Treasurer's report
- Reports of committees as necessary
- Election of Officers and Directors
- Unfinished Business
- New Business
- Adjournment

The President may call a meeting of the full board at any time deemed advisable. Likewise, a majority of the board may call a meeting of the full board. Special meetings of the membership for conducting Association business may only be called by consent of the Board.

ARTICLE X

The By-Laws of the Association may be amended by a majority vote of the members present at the Annual Meeting of members or any adjournment thereof, or any special meeting called for such purpose provided that the subject matter shall have been submitted in writing to the members at least thirty days prior to the date of the meeting. The By-Laws may, however, be amended without prior notice to the members by a vote of three-fourths of the members present at any annual meeting of the members.

Amendments of these By-Laws shall go into effect at the adjournment of the meeting at which they were adopted.

MISSOURI ANGUS SHOW FEMALE, BULL, COW/CALF, STEER AND SHOW BREEDER OF THE YEAR

Nineteen special awards will be given by the Missouri Angus Association (MAA) during the membership banquet at the Missouri Angus Breeders' Futurity weekend. MAA will track the points for all shows listed below. Breeders who have sold cattle outside of Missouri are encouraged to verify that Breeder of the Year point totals are accurate by January 1st.

Missouri Angus Breeders Show Female, Bull, Steer, and Cow/Calf of the Year

In 2021, there are the following changes to the point structure with additional details indicated in the respective section:

- The National Junior Angus Show and four Roll of Victory shows will have an increased point distribution.
- Cattlemen's Congress has been added as a recognized junior and open show.
- Each Missouri bred animal is able to contribute up to 200 points for the Show Breeder of the Year.

Awards will be calculated for two divisions, the Junior and Open. Both divisions include the Female, Bull and Cow/Calf of the Year. The female division awards will also be given using the following five breaks: Jr. Calf, Sr. Calf, Intermediate, Jr. Yearling, and Sr. Yearling. The Junior division will also have a Show Steer of the Year with points received for on-foot classes only at the recognized junior shows that offer an Angus steer division. Points will be given to Division (Div.) Champions and Reserve (Res.) Champions as well as Grand Champion and Res. Grand Champions unless otherwise specified. Awards will be determined based on participation in either the junior or open shows. These awards are individually awarded and based on one animal. Calves will not receive points unless shown separately. Animals do not receive double points in any one show. For example, if a heifer wins her division and then goes on to be named Grand Champion in a Missouri open show, she will only receive 60 points instead of 100. Points are accumulated at the shows listed below with no maximum number of points earned. Whichever animal owned by a MAA or Missouri Jr. Angus Association member that accumulates the most points per award specified below will be recognized.

Recognized Open Shows:

- Missouri Angus Preview Show* (June '21)*
- Ozark Empire Fair Open Show* (July '21)*
- Missouri State Fair Open Show* (Aug. '21)*
- American Royal Open Show (Oct. '21)*
- North American International Open Show (Nov. '21)*
- Cattlemen's Congress Open Show (Jan. '22)*
- National Western Stock Show (NWSS) Open Show (Jan. '22)*

Recognized Junior Shows:

- MO Jr. Angus Preview* (MCA All-Breed Show-June '21)*
- Missouri Breeders' Jackpot Show* (June '21)*
- National Junior Angus Show (NJAS) (July '21)*
- Ozark Empire Fair Jr. Show*+ (July '21)*
- Missouri State Fair 4-H and FFA Shows* (Aug. '21)*
- American Royal Jr. Show (Oct. '21)*
- North American Intl. (NAILE) Jr. Show (Nov. '21)*
- Cattlemen's Congress Jr. Show (Jan. '22)*
- National Western Stock Show Jr. Show (Jan. '22)*

Point Distribution for Missouri Shows*:

Grand Champion: 60 points    Res. Grand: 50 points    Div. Champion: 40 points    Res. Div. Champion: 30 points
+Bulls will only receive points for being named Grand or Reserve as there are no divisions in this junior bull show.

Point Distribution for NJAS, American Royal, NAILE, Cattlemen's Congress and NWSS:

Grand Champion: 80 points    Res. Grand: 70 points    Div. Champion: 60 points    Res. Div. Champion: 50 points
Class Winner: 30 points (National Junior Angus Show ONLY)

Missouri Angus Show Breeder of the Year Rules

Points accumulated by stock competing for the show animals of the year will be totaled with each breeder able to count up to five animals annually. Each animal is only able to contribute up to 200 points for this award, thus the maximum points one breeder can achieve is 1,000 points. In the case of a tie, a sixth animal will be allowed and so on until the tie is broken. With a tie of less than 1,000 points, the tie will be broken based on the breeder that has the fewer number of animals to reach the point total. Points will be earned as described in the show female, bull, steer, and cow/calf section, again with the maximum for this contest of 200 points per animal. Breeder is defined as owner of the female at time of service and therefore recorded that way on the registration paper. Points will be awarded based on the animal's Breeder code on the American Angus Association's registration certificate. Any Missouri bred animal is eligible to receive points towards the Show Breeder of the Year if bred by a MAA regular member or Missouri Jr. Angus Association member.

Specific Awards to be Presented on February 26, 2022:

Open Division:

- Cow/Calf of the Year
- Bull of the Year
- Heifer of the Year
- Show Breeder of the Year
- Heifer of the Year for the following divisions:
Jr. Calf, Sr. Calf, Intermediate, Jr. Yearling, Sr. Yearling

Junior Division:

- Cow/Calf of the Year
- Bull of the Year
- Steer of the Year
- Heifer of the Year
- Heifer of the Year for the following divisions:
Jr. Calf, Sr. Calf, Intermediate, Jr. Yearling, Sr. Yearling

PREPARING REPLACEMENT HEIFERS FOR THE LONG RUN

By Wyatt Bechtel,
Marketing Manager
at Filament

The ability to get replacement heifers bred and calved out early are important indicators for how long heifers will stay in a cow herd.

Knowing when heifers have started cycling is key to future reproductive success.

The ability to get replacement heifers bred and calved out early are important indicators for how long heifers will stay in a cow herd. And, heifers need to be fully developed heading into their first breeding season to ensure they'll have longevity and pay for themselves.

When you think about all the costs of developing a replacement heifer, it's critical they remain in the herd as long as possible," says George Perry, beef reproductive management specialist for South Dakota State University Extension. "Data suggests it takes approximately five calves to pay for a replacement heifer's development costs."

So, how can you keep heifers in the herd and maximize profit? It starts by knowing when a heifer is ready to breed for the first time.

Hit breeding weight benchmarks

The long-stated gold standard is for heifers to reach 65% of mature weight by the time of breeding. But more recent research has revealed heifers can reach puberty at just 55% of mature weight. According to Perry, the risk of using the 55% benchmark outweighs the reward.

"If the goal is to get more heifers bred early, stay conservative and use the 60-65% of mature weight as your benchmark," says Perry. "Higher weights give you insurance heifers have had time to develop and are more sexually mature."

An emphasis on nutrition is rightfully put during the critical phase between weaning and breeding when heifers are adding size to reach the 65% mature weight threshold. It is also vital to ensure heifers receive adequate nutrition following breeding.

Know when heifers are cycling

When heifers have reached their weight goal, there are a number of options to determine if heifers have gone through puberty and can breed.

Reproductive tract scoring is a common method used to verify if heifers are pubertal by palpating the reproductive tract and ovaries for size of follicles and to determine if a corpus luteum is present. A trained technician or veterinarian can perform this procedure, but it can be cost-prohibitive with charges ranging from $3-5 per heifer. If you're in a region with a high demand for veterinary services, scheduling may also be a challenge.

Another way to identify pubertal heifers is to spend time watching them daily. However, watching your animals takes time and you can't watch them 24/7 resulting in some getting missed.

According to Perry, the best option is using a breeding indicator. "The most time-efficient way to identify if a heifer is cycling is to use an adhesive breeding indicator patch," says Perry. "You put the breeding indicator on the animal prior to the breeding season and wait until you see activated indicators, which indicate a heifer is in heat and being mounted."

Breeding indicators help visually show when heifers have started becoming pubertal by expressing estrus. The indicators are applied between the hip and tailhead. As mounting activity occurs, the patch surface ink rubs off to expose a bright indicator color. You can monitor estrus activity as you have time and get a quick visual representation of when heifers are ready for breeding.

Once you know that heifers are pubertal, you can either set them up with a synchronization protocol for artificial insemination or expose them to a bull. Those heifers that aren't showing signs of cycling can then be sold as their odds of becoming pregnant are lower.

Breed a cycle ahead

One tactic to consider is breeding your heifers one estrous cycle (or approximately 21 days) ahead of when you breed mature cows.

At the point heifers are calving for the first time, they are still growing and adding more frame to reach their mature weight. Plus, they're lactating which puts additional energy demands on them. These factors make first-calf heifers notoriously hard to get cycling again. Achieving a second pregnancy can be a make-or-break situation.

"By breeding replacement heifers a cycle ahead of the mature herd, you allow them more recovery time after calving," says Perry. "Extra recovery time allows heifers to prepare for the subsequent breeding season, and gives them better odds of achieving a second pregnancy and staying in the herd."

"Overall, the goal of any heifer development program from weaning to breeding is to get animals to reach maturity, cycle and maintain a pregnancy. In reaching this goal, we can recover the cost of development by greatly increasing the likelihood heifers will stay in the herd long-term," says Perry.

culture. During his 25 years with the USDA, he oversaw eight different locations in the southwest Missouri area. He concluded his professional career at Mott Meats in Rockville, Missouri, where they harvested 200-230 head per day.

Currently, he runs Garton Angus with his wife Vicki and their son George and wife Crystal in Nevada, Missouri. Their other son John Garton, is an art history professor at Clark University in Massachusetts.

Garton Angus

In 1970 Dr. Norman Garton and his wife, Vicki, began Garton Angus. Dr. Garton says they purchased females from Aristocrat Angus Ranch in Colorado, Griswold Cattle in Wisconsin, and Ankony Angus in Iowa. By purchasing females from these elite operations, Garton Angus began with a solid foundation.

Garton Angus began using AI technology and Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) in 1973. Later on that year, they sold their first cattle at the Four State Angus Association Sale in Joplin, Missouri. In 1981, Garton Angus began using Embryo Transfer technology and began collecting performance records on that technology. Garton Angus began taking advantage of ultrasound data collection in 1998. Keeping up with cutting edge technologies has

Raising Angus cattle and being part of the Angus family continues to be a vital ingredient in Dr. Norman Garton's life.

Norman Garton grew up on his family's dairy in Nevada, Missouri, where they milked 110 Holstein cows. After showing cattle in 4-H, he joined FFA in high school and continued to show Angus cattle. Norman Garton attended the University of Missouri in 1962-68 where he earned his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree. Dr. Garton paid for his schooling from money earned working on his family's dairy and selling his cattle herd. After receiving his DVM, Dr. Garton served in the U.S Army Veterinary Corps from 1968-1970. During his time of service, he was a food inspector for the U.S Army in Indianapolis, Indiana.

In 1970, Dr. Garton established the Nevada Veterinary Clinic and worked as a mixed-animal veterinarian for 18 years. After selling the practice, he worked as a food inspector with the United States Department of Agri-allowed Garton Angus to earn its innovative reputation.

Marketing Cattle Through Bull Test Sales

“It’s allowed us to earn repeat customers,” says Dr. Norman Garton about his experience with sending bulls to bull tests. During the 1990s he began sending bulls to the MU Bull Test Station. Eventually bulls were sent to the Oklahoma Beef Inc. Bull Test in Stillwater, Oklahoma. Now bulls from Garton Angus are tested at the Green Springs Bull Test Station located in Nevada, Missouri. Garton Angus has raised the high-selling bull and high indexing bulls many times through that program. Putting bulls on test has allowed Garton Angus to improve their program through competition while also adding hard-data credibility to their genetics.

George and Crystal Garton raised Spur Franchise of Garton that sold through the Green Springs Bull Sale to three partners, Shurrtop Angus Ranch, Leo McDonnell, and Spur Ranch. Spur Franchise of Garton’s most famous progeny is the $105,000, Red Angus 9 Mile Franchise bull. He has been a highly sought-after sire in both the Angus and Red Angus breeds.

Dr. Garton says, “We try to emphasize a good quality carcass.” They have also been able to gather hard-data on the quality of carcasses from their animals by sending steers to feed-out competitions. Two years ago, their steers at the Missouri Steer Feedout had the highest average daily gain rate.

Involvement in the Angus Association

Dr. Norman Garton served on the American Angus Association Board of Directors for two terms, a total of six years. He was the President of the Missouri Angus Association from 1993-94 and served on the board prior to that time. Additionally, Dr. Garton has served as a board member for Certified Angus Beef and was on the Angus Production Inc. committee. He is a past president and board member of the Four State Angus Association and served on the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association Product Enhancement Committee. Dr. Garton has also been a part of many groups within his own community.

“Vicki and I have gotten to travel quite a bit,” Norman said. His involvement with different cattle associations has allowed him and his wife to visit Angus cattle operations domestically and internationally. Some exciting tours to see how cattle farms are operated included trips to Ireland, Scotland, Uruguay, and Australia.

Raising Angus cattle and being part of the Angus family continues to be a vital ingredient in Dr. Norman Garton’s life.

5 THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW WHEN USING TEMPORARY ELECTRIC FENCING

By Sarah Drown,
Freelance writer
for Progressive Publishing

Temporary electric fencing gives cattle owners more flexibility in their management, says Amanda Courtney, owner of Live Wire Products.

Electric fencing changed the game for cattle producers and sustainability on pastureland. Selecting the correct type of fencing for your operational goals impacts the efficiency of your forage and protects resources on your land.

Temporary electric fencing gives cattle owners more flexibility in their management, says Amanda Courtney, owner of Live Wire Products. Different seasons and changing weather conditions are easier to handle with electric fencing because cattle can be moved quickly and easily, she says. “I can isolate and set up 5 acres [of fencing] in an hour.”

Although electric fencing makes moving and rotating cattle simple, here are five things you should be aware of when installing and maintaining electric fencing to increase the longevity and usefulness of your fencing.

1. Invest in proper equipment

“First and foremost, [a producer] needs an energizer that fits the area they want to enclose,” Courtney says.

Energizers are measured in joules, and this is important to consider when purchasing one, she explains. If using a solar panel, 10 watts of energy are needed to power one joule. “Say you are running a two-joule energizer... we would need at least a twenty-watt solar panel to provide the energy to run the energizer,” Courtney says.

Grounding rods give direction for the electricity to travel. Inadequate grounding rods can cause you trouble when setting up fences. They are typically 8 feet in length. However, you can implement shorter grounding rods for rotational grazing for easier mobility. Courtney recommends using two or three rods connected with an insulated cable. This lets you set the rods 3 feet in the ground, rather than 8 feet, and still gives you good ground.

Another important tool for electric fence installation is a charge tester, says Jane Parish, professor and interim head of the department of animal and dairy sciences at Mississippi State University. A voltmeter is a worthy investment for managing electric fences, she says.

2. Maintenance

“Electric fences are low maintenance, but not no maintenance,” Courtney says. Like any type of fencing, it requires consistent observation to ensure insulators, rods, energizers and wires are functioning properly and have not been damaged by cattle. Managing vegetation at fence lines improves electric currents and longevity of equipment. Weeds or grass in contact with wires limits the power of a fence, Courtney says.

Another tip, Parish says, is to keep a fence tester handy when checking

The type of wire is dependent on the stability you need.

cattle and listen for the charge of the fence and energizer.

3. Know your situation

Know your objective and environment before you purchase equipment. The type and moisture content of soil can affect the type of grounding rods needed. Drier soils may require more grounding rods clustered together or longer grounding rods, Parish says. Soils with more moisture are advantageous because they provide better grounding and conduct electricity better.

The type of wire is dependent on the stability you need. If cattle are accustomed to electric fencing, thin polywire is sufficient. However, if cattle need to be trained to electric fencing, tape is a more visual option, Parish says.

4. Weather

As summer approaches, cattle owners need to be cognizant of potential storms and wind. Monitoring wind and rain means preparing for tree limbs to fall on fencing or objects to be blown into the wires.

Having a supply of materials to mend fences or replace insulators is prudent, Parish says. You should monitor and note any areas of fence that could be vulnerable during a storm, she adds.

5. Ask questions

Electric fencing is a widespread tool for cattle ranchers in the U.S., and many resources are available for producers to get their questions answered. County extension offices and local feed supply stores are good places to seek out, Parish says.

Additionally, distributors like Live Wire Products encourage customers to contact them with any questions or concerns regarding the installation or management of fencing, Courtney says. "Do not be afraid to call your distributor or the store you purchased [equipment] from and ask them questions," she says.

With these five things in mind, you can successfully manage your herd and promote sustainability on your land.

If you are a landowner with concerns that your real-world boundaries don't match your deed, it's a good idea to get a new, modern survey of your property.

ADVERSE POSSESSION FOR PROPERTY LINES AND EASEMENTS

Q: What is adverse possession?

Disputes over property and easement boundaries are probably the most frequently encountered legal problem for farmers and ranchers. It is common to discover that the property lines that landowners think they know do not match the legal property lines that a modern survey will lay out using the deed. This is particularly true in the hills and timber of southern Missouri, where the lay of the land made historical surveying difficult and imprecise. This month I want to explain the basics of Missouri's law of adverse possession for property lines and easements.

Under Missouri's doctrine of adverse possession, a person has a claim to ownership of a piece of land even if they do not own the property on the deed if certain conditions are met. Those conditions are as follows: (1) the person asserting a claim of adverse possession must have continuously and openly used the land in question, (2) for 10 years or more, (3) in a manner consistent with the land around it, (4) without the actual owner's permission, and (5) without allowing other people to use the land. If any of those conditions have not been met, the actual owner may block the other person's adverse possession claim. If each condition is met, the person seeking to establish ownership may pursue their claim.

A similar doctrine is in place for the use of roads and easements used to access adjoining property. A person may assert the right to use a road or easement across property even if the easement is not deeded to them, as long as they are able to show (1) they have openly and continuously used the route, (2) for 10 years or more, and (3) without the owner's permission. This is called a prescriptive easement.

Adverse possession in the modern day rarely involves large tracts of land. Instead, the issue often comes up when property is sold, and it is discovered that an existing road or fence line does not match the deeded property line. When such a discovery is made, the deeded landowner may assert their rights to the property, and the party currently possessing the property will often make a counterclaim of adverse possession.

If you are a landowner with concerns that your real-world boundaries don't match your deed, it's a good idea to get a new, modern survey of your property. That survey will help you discover any discrepancies, and you can move to repossess the land if 10 years has not passed or other adverse possession conditions have not been met. Even if 10 years have passed, it may be worthwhile to check with previous owners to see whether the other person's possession began with permission to use the land in question.

With that said, I'll leave you with a caution to make sure you do the math and remain rational if you discover that your fence lines or roads do not match your deed. As an example, a fence line that is off by 20 feet for a length of 300 feet adds up to a loss of .13 acres in total area. Even with rising land prices, it's pretty easy to run through an equivalent cost in lawyer time in just your first meeting to discuss the case. Going to court over small, disputed tracts of land is almost never cost effective. Instead, trying to work things out with your neighbor is usually the best course. If the situation is not resolved, however, it is important to contact an attorney with familiarity and experience in these types of disputes.

FIGHT FATIGUE, STRESS ON THE FARM WITH SLEEP

FARM SAFETY AND THE BOTTOM LINE DEPEND ON GOOD SLEEP

By Linda Geist,
University of Missouri Extension

Long hours during calving and planting seasons can cause fatigue and stress, leading to accidents and costly mistakes, says Mary Engram, University of Missouri Extension human development specialist.

“Lack of sleep affects us physically and mentally,” says Engram.

Remember that farm safety and the bottom line depend on good sleep, especially when handling animals or equipment, says Karen Funkenbusch, MU Extension health and safety specialist. Not getting enough sleep can have a steep cost: big medical expenses, reduced productivity, lost work hours and damaged equipment.

Fatigue tells the body that it needs rest from physical, mental and emotional demands, Engram says. Symptoms of fatigue include dizziness, headaches, vision problems, poor balance, reduced concentration and mood changes.

Good sleep keeps the body healthy. “During sleep, the body and mind repair from the day’s activities, memories are organized, and energy is renewed,” she says. The National Sleep Foundation recommends that adults get seven to nine hours of sleep nightly. Teens need eight to 10 hours of sleep each night.

Quantity of sleep matters, but so does the quality. Insomnia, snoring and nightmares can mean poor sleep. If you experience these problems often, talk with a health care professional, Engram says.

Engram offers tips to avoid fatigue on the farm:

- Go to sleep and wake up at the same time every day.
- Create a relaxing bedtime routine.

- Keep the bedroom cool, quiet and dark.
- Use a supportive, comfortable mattress and pillows.
- Finish meals two to three hours before bedtime.
- Exercise regularly.
- Limit alcohol, caffeine and nicotine, especially near bedtime.
- Drink plenty of water and plan meals to avoid last-minute choices that may not be healthy.
- Balance and prioritize farming activities with family, community and church events.

The Upper Midwest Agricultural Safety and Health Center offers a free checklist to assess farm fatigue at umash.umn.edu/farm-safety-check-fatigue.

MU Extension’s Show-Me Strong Families program provides resources for farm families dealing with natural disasters, stress and mental health issues. Learn more at facebook.com/ShowMeStrongFarmFamilies.

BYERGO ANGUS

ONE FOCUS: THE COMMERCIAL MAN

At Byergo Angus we are focused on making the commercial producer profitable. It is all about efficient pounds (both in the pasture and feedlot) in a sound package that can return you premiums in a Power Maternal Package.

BUY Missouri

We have been very fortunate to evaluate cattle from coast to coast the last few years. One thing we have learned is there is no need to travel three states away to buy a commercial bull. So many great programs right here in the state of Missouri that will provide anything you want in a package that is adapted to Missouri's unique environment and fescue.

AM I FULL OF CRAP?

Dr. Pereira

Azores
VETERINARY PRACTICE

Mortality has gone way down. The use of First Defense products has proven to be a major weapon in the fight against neonatal scours on our dairy herds. Calves in our care get protected as soon as they hit the ground. If it was more complicated than that, I wouldn't be standing here.

HAY AND COWS AND CHAFF AND STUFF

By Howell N.
Wheaton

Failing to plan for drought is planning to fail if you are a Missouri cow person. Carryover hay in the barn is money in the bank, actually it is your savings account for those hay shortage seasons. The National Lab for Agriculture and Environment (NLAE) have found significant changes and different patterns of total rainfall in recent years when compared to those of a few decades ago. These wider shifts in weather extremes have been more severe and frequent in the South and Midwest than in the rest of the country. Unfortunately, they expect this Midwest trend of extreme fluctuations in rainfall as well as warmer temperatures to continue. This past 2021 winter feeding period presented us with a larger hay carryover than in many past years. The amount varies from place to place in Missouri, but there are lots of unused bales setting around as the pasture season begins. This summer is an excellent time to store/cover/protect this year's new hay crop and start the hay saving account.

Fescue has become the “biggie” cool season grass (CSG) in Missouri but there are places where it probably shouldn't be. There are other CSG that can be utilized to an advantage in many beef cow programs. Smooth brome grass is the most nutritious of all the CSG and it produces well in the 1/4 to 1/3 of north Missouri and in selected other areas.

It seems to favor soils that are high in organic matter such as those formed under grasslands. There is an example of that on my doorstep at WAF where my experience with brome has been average at best but just 2 miles to my west there is a small prairie about 2 to 3 miles wide and 10 miles long where brome is very productive and persistent throughout its entirety. Once in my career, I ran grazing trials comparing brome, orchardgrass, fescue and bluegrass. These grasses included alfalfa and ladino clover in the sward except bluegrass had birds-foot trefoil as its companion. The steer average daily gain (ADG) was always best on the brome followed by, surprise surprise, bluegrass then orchardgrass with tall fescue tagging along in the rear. The steers were weighed every 28 days and the fescue steers always had the lowest ADG every weigh day even in the fall when fescue is supposed to “perk up”. Bluegrass coupled with trefoil was always close to brome-legume in animal performance. Orchardgrass, called “Cocksfoot” in England, but referred to as orchardgrass in the U.S. because it grows well in the semi-shade of apple and peach orchards. (I just can't resist inserting a little useless trivia occasionally for my own amusement). For many years orchardgrass (OG) was the number one grass used in the lower corn belt, east and upper south before it was replaced by fescue. It was especially used in hay mixtures of alfalfa or/and red clover. It still fills that role today because of its rank in nutritious value, close to brome and above fescue and reed canary. Orchardgrass' biggest weakness has been its susceptibility to leaf disease including leaf spot and rusts that can and do decrease its forage quality. There are some varieties of OG that now have tolerance of these plant diseases and should be used in making new orchardgrass seedings.

Stand for something otherwise you will fall for anything.

Reed canarygrass (NOT REEDS) has unique characteristics in that it can withstand flooding for days, grows and produces on swampy, poorly drained soils as well as remaining green and growing in the Missouri hot and dry summers. It is useful as a forage crop and is frequently used for erosion control in gullies and edges of pond dams to control damage from wave action.

Reed canarygrass (RC) has a fibrous root system that spreads by rhizomes but also produces roots and shoots from nodes of freshly cut hay if these nodes are pressed into moist soils. It is that later attribute that makes it ideal to help heal repaired gullies. Freshly cut hay was spread on these areas often by using a manure spreader. Then cattle were driven back and forth over the area to punch the nodes into the soil. In the late 1940's, I actually watched my father do this. He took fresh hay from the Soil Conservation Societies canarygrass growing bank but instead of cattle he rode one of his riding horses while leading another back and forth. My Dad loved his riding horses and couldn't understand why I did not. My belief is that horses are dangerous on both ends and uncomfortable in the middle! Reed canarygrass is sometimes been criticized for its lack of palatability primarily for two reasons, internal alkaloids and grazing or harvesting when it is very mature. Later varieties like Ioreed and others have more or less eliminated the alkaloid problem and management can lessen the other. I have found that grazing cattle prefer RC to fescue during the spring and summer and accept it just as readily as they do timothy and orchardgrass. I have one small pasture in the creek bottom that somehow has a combination of canarygrass and fescue although it was not intended to be that way. The two grasses are not intermingled and for the lack of a better word "patchy" with large areas of predominantly one grass or the other. The pasture has become kind of a laboratory or grazing school for me as I watch how it is grazed from spring until late fall. Beginning in the spring the cattle graze the reed canarygrass and ignore the fescue unless they are starved to start grazing it and this pattern continues through June, July and August. I also observed that RC stays green and grows into the hot summer months. But sometime in early September this grazing does a complete flip and fescue becomes the cows first choice while reed canarygrass becomes something they will not touch.

It takes little courage to clinging to the past but much more to face the future.

Timothy (once called Herd grass) was one of the first of the tall growing cool season grasses (CSG) to be used in this country. It was the standard hay for work horses during the horse power days and still is in demand by recreational horse owners. It is a natural to grow with red clover because it matures at about the same time which is later than the other cool season grass. Timothy begins to bloom and mature at least two weeks or more later than orchardgrass and fescue and a week to ten days later than brome. In some areas the timothy-red clover mix became the top-line hay for dairy cows partially because timothy is a high-quality forage and the combination of red clover will grow and produce on soils lower in fertility than alfalfa. Timothy has a much different root system than the rest of its cool season brethren. It has a very shallow system with a bulb like base called a culm that almost looks like an onion which serves as storage for energy needed for regrowth. The new growth begins as shoots from the culm. The use of timothy has declined with the increase of fescue and orchardgrass acres, but it still has a place in many forage programs. In my case, its late maturity is an advantage when used as a hay on my poorly drained creek bottom soils. Many years it is well into June before those soils dry enough to withstand hay equipment. By that time fescue/OG have made seed and are way past their prime while timothy is still okay.

Missouri is a big state and its truly where from an agriculture standpoint, the east meets the west and the north and south can't make up their minds as to which is which. So, there are great variations in soil types and their potential as well as the wide difference in weather and rainfall patterns. One tire size does not fit all rims and while fescue is very adaptable it is not always the best selection for all situations. Many times, orchardgrass, brome, timothy and/or reed canarygrass are a better selection that can increase both the quality and quantity of a forage program. There are other cool season grasses that fit Missouri such as redtop, ryegrass, and creeping foxtail but are of minor importance. Redtop was once widely used in Missouri both for pasture and hay, not only in Missouri but all across the so-called lower corn-belt and upper south. If I remember correctly when I was a small child one of my uncles had a field of redtop that was his preferred hay for his mules.

Moo musing from my favorite cow:

- ✓ Please no cattle prods, whips or other prods. They excite me and make me a wild thing!
- ✓ The mineral feeder was empty again this morning. I need some every day.
- ✓ Ouch, those biting flies hurt. Get out the sprayer and the back rubbers are dry.
- ✓ Hey Boss—have you had all your virus shots? Don't forget my booster shots for all that alphabetical stuff like IBR, BVD and others. Some I need PDQ.
- ✓ Thanks for those M. bovoculli shots. The needle didn't sting very much and my eyes haven't watered or hurt this summer. If you missed some of my mates its not too late to help them avoid that terrible "pink eye".
- ✓ Once again boss, my rumen bugs need a taste of trace minerals every day to do their job.
- ✓ Adding some clover seed to my fescue pastures each winter is fantastic. It really puts some zip into my summer diet.
- ✓ I bet most folks don't know that I have hypsodont teeth. That's so I can't be ground down as I get older.

Hope all is well with all of you out there, Howell

KIA Says Rumors Surrounding Stimulus Package Inaccurate

HOPEKA, KS—With the recent passage of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act, which includes support for livestock producers, there have been various inaccurate rumors circulating about how payments will be calculated and distributed. It is important to note that no payment formula or timeline was included in the stimulus bill. It simply designated funds to be used to provide relief for agricultural producers, including livestock producers. USDA will be developing an aid program in that works along with the Kansas Livestock Association and National Cattlemen's Beef Association staff will be there to advise the agency on how best to target these disaster relief funds. ## Cow-calf Producers May Find Two-stage Weaning Pr

by Donald Math

STILLWATER, OK—Cattle producers with full-salvaging herds who are contemplating upcoming weaning choices have several options to reduce animal stress. "Many people opt for a lot when they are weaned, but calves tend to do the opposite," said Earl H. Wood, Oklahoma State University Extension area livestock specialist for northeastern Oklahoma. "This can lead to health concerns such as depressed immune systems and an increase in the number of diseased animals post-weaning."

There are a variety of ways to reduce stress during weaning. Popular options include but are not limited to weaning calves a few weeks prior to weaning and freeze-line weaning. Both give calves time to recover with the diet.

Weaned producers not to wean back two-stage weaning. In a two-stage weaning process, the calf is weaned from milk before it is weaned from the cow.

A new flap is used to prevent the calf from nursing. "This is not a new concept, but upon over the years," Ward said with a nutrient-dense diet prior flap will help manage weight loss to nutrition faster. Producers of nutrition programs once that typically, it is recommended to wean days prior to wean. "Be sure to inspect the flaps before installation as some wear in a calf," said Dr. Anna Jonstock, DVM, DABVP, DABO, a small animal veterinarian. Zoek added it is important to message weaning will as the producer needs to keep consistent to ensure animal. "Producers should evaluate options prior to weaning—predict their operation's time and determine the best post-weaning option for the animal. If forage is the addition of supplier

November Beef Exports Largest In More Than A Year; 2020 Pork Exports Top Previous Annual Record

U.S. beef exports posted one of the best months in record compiled by the U.S. Meat Federation (USMEF) and November was also a strong month for pork exports, which already surpassed the full-year volume and value records set in 2019. "Demand for U.S. beef in the global retail sector has been outstanding and we expect this to continue in 2021," said USMEF President and CEO Dan Halverson. "Unfortunately, feedservice continues to face COVID-related challenges. We expect a broader feed-service recovery this year, especially from mid-2021, but will likely still see imbalances in some markets. For U.S. pork, it's great to see new growth with an entire month to spare, but especially gratifying to see a strong month of exports coming to U.S. export growth. USMEF will bring a much-needed rebound in other regions, especially in Western Hemisphere markets." (See story on Page 7)

NCBA Delivers House Introduction Of Bipartisan DIRECT Act

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) recently hailed the introduction of bipartisan legislation to create new opportunities for cattle producers and processors to market beef products. Introduced by U.S. Representatives Dan Claitor (R-VA), Lyle L. Swanwick (R-NC), and Henry Calvert (D-TX), the Direct Interstate Retail Exports for Certain Transactions (DIRECT) Act of 2021 would allow retail quantities of state lines through e-commerce, providing beef producers and local processors alike with more options to market direct to consumers. (See story on Page 8)

The Three Sides Of The Carcass Prediction Triangle

By Tracy Kestlin, Red Angus Magazine Editorial Contributor

Bull sale season triggers the abundance of sale catalogs, videos and auctions with more available data than most ranchers can get their mind around. While bull buyers need to determine what is most important to help them reach the goals of their operation. Being in the beef business, carcass traits that improve the quality of the beef end product should be top of mind, however, economically efficient traits and carcass traits are often a bull buyer's first selection criteria. Without stability on the ranch and in the feedlot, the calf won't make it to the rail and onto consumer dinner tables.

Regardless, producing quality steaks, roasts and burgers is the ultimate goal, and predictive tools such as EPDs and indexes allow bull buyers to select the animals that will produce the best beef quality in their progeny.

As ranchers pore over sale catalogs, supplement sheets and EPDs, they may ask: what carcass traits are important to focus on. Should they base their purchasing decisions on the carcass ultrasound data? Or should they focus on the EPDs? If a bull has been DNA scored and his EPDs are genetically enhanced, do they need the scan data? Is a bull's scan data actually relevant to the answer to such of these questions as "Yes!" Because live carcass grading is only done on the animals undergoing accurate predictive tools to ranchers can select bulls that will improve carcass merit in their feeder cattle.

Combined into EPDs.

Three main areas of carcass trait prediction form a triangle of information that is packaged into useful EPDs. Ultrasound scans, genomic profiles and actual harvest data are included into these predictive tools to simplify and assist ranchers in selecting their next high-carcass-merit herd sire.

These EPDs are expressed in the Red Angus carcass EPDs that includes Marbling, Yield Grade, Carcass Weight, Rib Eye Area and Back Fat. To further simplify the genetic selection process for ranchers, they can rely on the GridMaster index, that includes these (Continued on Page 6)

- ◆ 82 proven sires with actual harvest data, and every breeding animal scanned for %IMF, REA and backfat make our EPDs for end-product merit some of the most accurate in the nation.
- ◆ 19 proven sires with feed intake data reported on their progeny, along with performance data based on fescue, gives our herd an edge on feed efficiency, especially as reflected by RADG.
- ◆ SydGen Sires have over 132,000 progeny recorded in the Angus database, along with 52,000 ultrasound scans and 39,000 daughters with calves reported. All this data helps train the genomic markers as well, allowing us to produce young stock that will perform to their EPD levels.
- ◆ Herd Sires with some of the highest $Combination indexes, at high-accuracy levels, are the results of this selection.
- ◆ Long-time supporters of the Missouri Angus Association and the Missouri Angus Futurity.
- ◆ Marketing options available to customers through two annual Influence sales.
- ◆ Our sale book has a history of many "firsts" and is one of the most completely documented sale books in the industry.
- ◆ Our annual Production Sale is one of the real "events" of the Angus business, and multitudes of popular herd sires and great breeding females have graduated from this event.
